Building Competitive Companies through Strong Industrial Relations

Forest Industrial Relations Ltd (FIR LTD.) has served forest products companies in British Columbia since 1943. As an accredited employers association under the BC Labour Relations Code, FIR Ltd. bargains and administers for its member companies, the Industry's Coast Master Agreement with the United Steelworkers(USW).

The concept of having one master collective agreement covering all employers and unionized employees has been an advantage to the industry through the years. But, the B.C. labour relations scene has changed dramatically over the years and there are some companies who would like to experiment with more individualized bargaining strategies.

FIR Labour Relations Ltd. is a new organization created to provide all the contract administration services to FIR members that they currently enjoy. But, FIR Labour Relations has a broader mandate than FIR Ltd. and hopes to develop a broader and more diverse client base as well. For example, non - FIR companies, who wish to bargain separate collective agreements with their union, may purchase consultative services for use in those negotiations.
